SLEAP AIRFIELD

Sleap Airfield (pronounced "Slape") is an ex-Royal Air Force airfield, which was opened in April 1943, and used by RAF advanced flying training units. Initially it was the base for RAF Bomber Command equipped with Armstrong Whitworth Whitley bomber aircraft.

Now, Sleap is operated by Shropshire Aero Club Ltd, a non profit members club and offers flying training, aviation fuel and is a excellent destination for pilots and non pilots alike.
